John James Audubon

1785-1851

John James Audubon, son of a French Navy officer, came to this country in 1803 at his father's request to avoid being drafted into Napoleon's War with England.

He arrived at his father's plantation near Philadelphia and from that point forward he focused on observing, collecting, mounting and drawing birds. His stated intention was "to complete a collection not only valuable to the scientific class, but pleasing to every person."

Audubon married and had two sons. While at work on his lifelong collection "The Birds of America" he operated a retail business, owned a lumber mill, taught art, painted commissioned portraits and struggled emotionally as he was separated from his family for years while he pursued his birds.

After more than 30 years of collecting & drawing, he traveled to England with 435 of his watercolors to be published in double-elephant folio size (26" x 39") as hand-colored engravings by the renowned Robert Havell. This edition took over twelve years to complete (1826-1838), was limited to 200 sets and cost over $2 million dollars in today's currency to publish. Audubon, with the help of his son, sold 175 subscriptions to Birds of America, each was priced at $1,000, the cost of a grand home at the time. A single original folio sold at auction in 2002 for $8.8 million.

Audubon led a life as an artist, field scientist and entrepreneur. Audubon is now synonymous with birdwatching and the preservation of ecosystems and habitats for birds. John James Audubon would have rejoiced at the recent sighting of the long lost Ivory-Billed Woodpecker. Many considered this magnificent bird extinct; but legions of backyard birdwatchers & ornithologists never gave up hope.

The New-York Historical Society purchased Audubon's original watercolors from his widow, Lucy Audubon, in 1863 after her family's fortunes had once again reversed. Audubon Masterprints™ are made directly from his original watercolors and not from Havell's "interpretative" engravings.

About this Audubon Masterprint™

Each 11" x 17" Audubon Masterprint™ is printed on an acid-free, 80 lb cover weight paper made in America. Each print is inspected for quality by hand. The verso of each print includes text for each bird taken from Audubon's 1840 "First Octavo" addition that presented Audubon's images and text descriptions.

Audubon Masterprint's distinctive 11" x 17" size and our classic packaging makes a ready-to-hang "framed" watercolor at a great price. Audubon Masterprints can also be ordered double-matted and framed as pictured in the back of this catalog.

Hundreds of Audubon's original drawings will be released over the next three years as Masterprints. This catalog pictures 137 of his landmark images that are now available. In addition, Eight Portfolios have been planned that will include 4 prints each in a handsome black protective case. Audubon magnets will be sold in packaged sets of four and individually.

A portion of the proceeds from the sale of Audubon Masterprints™ are used to support the New-York Historical Society's Programs.
